“Managing Your Non-Point Source Pollution”

With guest speaker Dave Cedarholm

It is a fact that modern lifestyles impact the water bodies around us and it is time for each of us to start doing something positive to reduce this impact. There are numerous low tech common sense approaches that communities, neighborhoods, and individuals can take to reduce these negative impacts such as disconnecting or diverting stormwater runoff away from direct discharge to local streams, brooks and wetlands. Start by asking your children why we shouldn't set the bar high and strive to return the region's water bodies to their original pristine conditions? Come hear Dave Cedarholm on September 27th speak about what you and your community can do TODAY to start improving the water quality of New Hampshire's one and only Great Bay Estuary.
